

JAMES PENDER DIES AT HIS HOME

James F. Pender, formerly chief of detectives on the Ogden police force for 18 years, died at 4:40 o'clock yesterday afternoon at his residence, 2571 Wall avenue, after an illness of typhoid complications. The former detective was taken sick shortly after his visit to the east and had been confined to his bed for 15 days.

Following his retirement from the police force March 1, 1912, Mr. Pender had been in the employ of the express companies as a special agent. The former detective had been a member of the local police department for 18 years. He retired from active police duty on March 1, 1912, soon after the commission form of government was established in this city. For more than a year past he had been employed by the express companies as a special agent.

He was appointed to the police department under the administration of Mayor Charles M. Brough in 1894, and held the office of chief of detectives during the half a dozen administrations which followed.

For more than fifty years he was identified with the stirring life of the real wild western country. He was a plainsman before the days of the railroads in Colorado and Kansas, and fought as a scout in the Indian wars with Gen. George A. Custer, the hero of the famous massacre at Little Big Horn in Montana.

He was born in Wheeling, W. Va., November 29, 1845, and came west when he was 17 years old to visit an uncle at Fort Scott, Colo. He secured a place at the military reservation as a messenger, where he got his military training, which afterward stood him in good stead when he became a scout for the army in the Indian wars. When he was 20 years old he went to Kansas. For nine years he was a scout for the army, and knew the wild plains in the then far western country like a book.

In 1868 he was with the Papoon scouts in the massacre of Black Kettle Indians in the Panhandle of Texas.

For some time before the massacre the Indians had been on the warpath and had been pillaging the caravans on the Santa Fe trail. At that time they were the terror of the overland trails. The city of the Indian wars was marked with the bones of the slaughtered pioneers when Pender and the other Papoon scouts were put on the trail of the redskins and ordered to hunt them down.

The battle between the scouts and the Indians is one of the most famous in the history of the Indian wars. The entire band of savages was annihilated. During this campaign Pender met some of the most noted Indian fighters on the plains.

At the time of the famous battle of the Little Big Horn, in which General Custer lost his life, Pender was on duty many miles south of the scene of the massacre. While on the plains he became a personal friend of "Wild Bill" Hickok, and "California Joe," made famous by the romantic historians of the west. He knew William H. Cody ("Buffalo Bill") when he was on the plains.

After the wild life on the plains Pender went to Joplin, Mo., where he was in charge of a smelter for several years. He was married at Farley, Mo., in 1869. In the early days he moved to Colorado Springs, and for years conducted a wagon train from there to Leadville. He came to Salt Lake in 1887 and moved to Ogden in 1890.

During his career on the local police force he was connected with some of the most famous criminal cases in this part of the country. One of his noted captures was that of Sir Henry Cooper, a forger of international notoriety, who had defied the police of three continents. Pender not only captured this famous crook, but wrung a complete confession from him and was instrumental in sending him to the penitentiary in California.

Pender was congratulated by Scotland Yard and the police of America. He also captured three members of the famous Maybray gang which had operated all over the country in swindles that mounted up to more than a million dollars. He arrested Steve Adams, who was thought to have been an accomplice of the leaders of the Western Federation of Miners at the time of the strikes in Colorado. He was a witness in the famous Moyer-Haywood trial at Boise when Harry Orchard made his startling confessions to the dynamiting of judges and the murder of the former governor of Idaho.

Pender was one of the three scouts who were with Custer who remained of that famous band of Indian fighters. The other two survivors are R. M. Wright of Dodge City, Kan., and Henry House of Corinne, House has been visiting his fellow scout during his recent illness. He saw him a few hours before he died yesterday.

The former detective was a member of Weber lodge No. 5, F. & A. M., the Salda (Colo.) chapter No. 17, El Monte Commandery No. 2 of the Knights Templar of Ogden and Elkalah temple of the Mystic Shrine of Salt Lake.

Besides his wife he is survived by three sons and four daughters. The sons are Robert E., John A. and James Franklin, Jr.; the daughters are Mrs. H. R. Hilsop, Mrs. W. R. Swan, Mrs. W. R. Hathaway and Mrs. Richard Stuch. The latter is on her way from Grand Rapids, Mich. A brother, John A. Pender, lives at Carlin, Nev.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at the residence of Mrs. H. R. Hilsop, 2571 Wall avenue.

The Rice & Dore Water Carnival arrived last night over the Union Pacific about 10 o'clock. They have their own special train and appear to be as large a show as the advertisements announced.

The press notices from the towns in which the show played are all very good and a pleasant week is in store for the amusement loving public of Ogden.

Hundreds of "unadvertised" bargains are offered in addition to those here mentioned.

A $45,000 Painting on Exhibition

Beginning tomorrow we will exhibit, for a short time, the wonderful oil painting "Lincoln, the Rail Splitter and Student." The owners of this painting are shipping it to the east, and we were fortunate enough to secure it for a few days. The picture shows Lincoln, the youth of twenty-two. He has spent a day at his work of splitting rails; as he journeys homeward in the evening, his axe in one hand, his worn hat under his arm; he holds in his right hand a book in which he is deeply interested.

The picture will be exhibited on the second floor. There will be no admission charged. Public is invited.
